Drying preparations simply develop dry catarrh; they dry up the secretions, which adhere to the membrane and decompose, causing a far more serious trouble than the ordinary form of catarrh. Avoid all drying inhalants, fumes, smokes and snuffs and use that which cleanses, soothes and heals. Ely's Cream Balm will master catarrh or cold in the head easily and pleasantly. All druggists sell the 50 cent size. Ely Brothers, 56 Warren Street, New York.
The Balm is used without pain, does not irritate or cause sneezing. It spreads itself over an irritated and angry surface, relieving immediately the painful inflammation.
Ely's Cream Balm contains no cocaine, mercury nor other harmful drugs.

A Cranky Widow.

[Copyright, 1908, by T. C. McClure.]

Uncle Ben Williams held that widows should marry only widowers for a second term of matrimony. He also had to keep a book account of the widowers.

There came a day when Uncle Ben had to add his own name to the list of widowers. His good wife passed away and left him alone. He grieved for a few months and then started in on his work again. He was rather forced to. He got track of a widow who had given out that she would never marry again. She had heard of Uncle Ben and had given out that she defied him. He still wore his emblem of mourning as he drove over to see her. He found her perfectly satisfied with her situation. Death had claimed a husband so lazy that he hated to turn over in bed, and she didn't propose to take further chances. Uncle Ben brought out his statistics. They ran back 400 years and applied to every nation. They proved beyond controversy that there was only one constitutionally lazy man out of every 500 of the male population. Thus the widow might remarry 499 times and run no risk. She then put it that her late lamented had the appetite of a horse and shook the walls of the house at night with his snorings. There were statistics to prove that this state of affairs was to be found in America only in one case out of a thousand and then when the moon was in her third quarter. Whatever excuse the widow brought forward Uncle Ben successfully controverted, and at length she gave him a big piece of apple pie and a glass of cider and gently turned him out of doors. But he wouldn't stay out. Within a month he was back to plead the cause of a certain widower. He had the man's history down in writing, and he had his tintype. The widower didn't snore, he was a hustler, he was good natured, he didn't swear at his oxen, he built the kitchen fire in the morning, he had a farm of so many acres, and he was the owner of so many horses, cattle, hogs and sheep, with a spotted calf thrown in to make a good bargain. The widow shook her head and said nay, however. She had sixty acres of her land in turnips, and she felt that it was going to be a great year for that vegetable.

Uncle Ben came again with a widower that had once seen the widow driving along the highway and had fallen in love with her. He had only five children; he never refused his wife a calico dress or a pair of shoes; he never indulged in remarks when his meals were not ready; if the cellar needed whitewashing he did the work himself; if a tin pan leaked he could mend it, and if the churn dasher broke he could make another from a broomstick within ten minutes. The widow gave this man ten minutes' thought and then shook her head. Hay was selling for $20 a ton, and she would have thirty tons to sell.

He brought Nos. 4, 5 and 6, and he brought tintypes, photographs and memoranda. He drank cider while enumerating their many virtues, and he ate apple, peach and huckleberry pie between statistics. As one candidate after another was presented and his claims set forth Uncle Ben saw that the widow softened a bit. She turned them all down, but this softening encouraged him to go ahead. In his own mind he thought her a bit particular—even cranky—for turning down a farmer blind in one eye, a lightning rod man with a game leg and a wire fence man with a hump on his back, but he did not say so. He knew that if he kept on long enough and could find candidates enough the widow was bound to give in. He didn't neglect his farm work altogether, but he kept an eye out for the right sort of candidate. He thought he had him in No. 7. He brought the widower to the house and let him sit in the buggy at the gate while he went in to do the talking.

"There he is, widder," he said, with an air of confidence. "Take a look at him from the winder. Forty-eight years old, in good health and not a blemish on him. Don't swear, chaw terbacker nor drink. Never gits mad and allus willin' for his wife to go to town. Got five children, and they are little angels. Only takes an hour to scrub one up so that you want to kiss him. Big farm, keeps a hired gal, lives well and bound to make you happy for the rest of your life. When I add that his late wife left four pairs of almost new shoes behind her you can see what kind of a man he is. Shall I holler to him to come in?"

"No, you needn't holler," quietly replied the widow.

"But what's the matter?"

"I shan't marry him."

"But look a-here, widder, this is the seventh man I've brung to your notice."

"Yes."

"And don't you think you're a bit cranky to turn the hull drove of 'em down?"

"I shall never marry," she replied, with a sigh.

"You won't? Say, I kin show you statistics to"—

"I shall never marry unless the right man comes along."

"But who is the right man? Where am I goin' to find him?"

The widow took a step forward and laid a hand on Uncle Ben's arm, and a beautiful blush mantled her cheeks.

"Good Lord, but why didn't you say so six months ago!" he exclaimed as he put an arm around her.

ERRATIC SCIENCE.

Some Wonderful Answers by Schoolroom Small Boys.

"Mushrooms always grow in damp places, and so they look like umbrellas," wrote a small boy in the science examination. Other examples of the "howler" are compiled by a writer in the Scientific American:

"Air is the most necessary of all the elements. If there were no such thing as air I would not be writing this essay now, also there would be no pneumatic tires, which would be a sad loss.

"Electricity and lightning are of the same nature, the only difference being that lightning is often several miles in length, while electricity is only a few inches.

"Air usually has no weight, but found to weigh about fifteen pounds to a square inch.

"The axis of the earth is an imaginary line on which the earth is supposed to take its daily routine.

"The difference between air and water is that air can be made wetter, but water cannot.

"Gravity is chiefly noticeable in the autumn when the apples are falling from the trees.

"Things which are equal to each other are equal to anything else.

"A parallel straight line is one which if produced to meet itself does not meet.

"The blood is putrefied in the lungs by inspired air."

TIPS IN SCOTLAND.

An Example of How Some Servants Win Their Wages.

A gentleman was invited to a shoot in Scotland at two places close together. He arrived at the first place, and immediately after his arrival at the first house received a telegram calling him back to town. He, however, determined to have one day's shooting and to proceed to town by the night mail.

At the end of the day he gave the head keeper £1 and asked him to send his gun and cartridge bag over to the other place for which he had an invitation and where he proposed proceeding in three or four days' time.

On his arrival there after his visit to town he found his gun, etc., had not arrived, whereupon he wrote to the keeper, asking him to forward it at once, and he received a reply stating that when he (the keeper) had received the other £4 to which he was "entitled" the gun would be forwarded. It was detained till payment was made.

The gentleman wrote to the keeper's master and received a reply that "he (the master) never interfered between his guests and his servants in the matter of tips." The gentleman ascertained that the master in question paid the keeper no wages, but left him to get what he could out of the guests.—London Times.

Luck In Horseshoes.

The superstition about luck in horseshoes dates back too far for record, but it was not always confined to the horseshoe. Any piece of iron found in one's path was accounted a sign of good luck, and as horseshoes were more commonly picked up than any other article of that metal that particular object at last became the standard emblem of good fortune and the supposed defense against bad luck. In Aubrey's "Miscellanies," written 200 years ago, the author mentions having seen the horseshoe nailed up in church, and he also says that "most of the houses in the west end of London have the horseshoe on the threshold." The horseshoe to possess virtue must have been found, not purchased or looked up. Admiral Nelson had great faith in the luck of the horseshoe, and one was nailed to the mast of his ship, the Victory.—London Chronicle.

One Thing He Could Not Have.

Although there was no sort of toy which could be bought and for which Harold had expressed a desire that was not in his possession, he still had his unsatisfied longings. "I know what I wish I was, mother," he said one day when his own big brother had gone away and the little boy across the street was ill.

"Yes, dear," said his mother. "Perhaps you can be it, Harold; mother will help you. Is it to play soldier?"

"No, indeed!" said Harold scornfully. "I just wish I was two little dogs, so I could play together."—Youth's Companion.

Bouncing Betsey.

There is an old fashioned flower called "Bouncing Betsey," which every one should love for one trait. We have noticed that it grows on all neglected graves, as if trying to cover up the fact that some one who once lived is forgotten. It may also be found in corners of old fashioned gardens, where it grows and blooms and protests against being pushed out entirely. There are some dear old fashioned people who suggest "Bouncing Betsey."—Atchison Globe.

Her Latest Luxury.

"Young man," said the heavy father, "do you understand the style in which my daughter has been accustomed to live? She has always had every luxury she wanted." "And now I'm the luxury she wants," murmured the suitor.—London Globe.

Time's Changes.

"Before we were married you said you'd lay down your life for me," she sobbed.

"I know it," he returned solemnly, "but this confounded flat is so tiny there's no place to lay anything down."—Harper's Bazar.

Heaping Coals of Fire

[Copyright, 1908, by American Press Association.]

The Rev. Marcus Butterfield toiled arduously for years to pay off the mortgage of St. Mark's church. At last he got the mortgage down to $5,000, and there it stuck. The rector was getting on in years and was not capable of the energetic efforts he had formerly made.

Mr. Butterfield's congregation never had a thought of being dissatisfied with him till Miss Amelia Tetling, fifty-five years old, with three short grizzly curls on each temple, told them they were. Miss Tetling made up her mind that she would undermine Mr. Butterfield with a view to securing a man in his place who could raise the required $5,000. When Miss Tetling determined to accomplish anything she usually did it. She began by calling Mrs. Beeswick's attention to the fact that the pastor's voice was becoming husky.

Miss Tetling's next move was to remark to Mrs. Beadle that the pastor's wife seemed to have lost interest in the welfare of the congregation. Mrs. Beadle hadn't thought of it, but now it was mentioned she remembered that Mrs. Butterfield had not been in her house for a year. True, Mrs. Butterfield had been ill most of that time, but the remark set Mrs. Beadle to thinking. She mentioned the matter to several members of the congregation, and all but one said they, too, had the same complaint to make.

Miss Tetling, following up her initial efforts with "little drops of water, little grains of sand," in time arrayed a party behind her in the matter of getting rid of the rector. Her group finally comprised two-thirds of the congregation, while the other third were equally determined to keep him. Mr. Butterfield finally learned of the movement—that is, he learned that "a few of his parishioners" were anxious to supplant him with a better man. He promptly tendered his resignation. He was astonished that it was accepted by a vote of 160 to 50.

If there was anything the church was proud of it was its treatment of "their beloved pastor" when "he left them." They gave him half a year's salary and resolved to call on him for an occasional sermon, for each of which he was to be paid $15. "Could anything be more generous?" remarked Miss Tetling to Mrs. Abercrombie. Mrs. Abercrombie was of the party of the pastor's supporters.

"Very generous," she replied. "Just think, he has been even better treated than was our Saviour."

"What do you mean?"

"He hasn't been crucified."

Mr. Butterfield found it impossible to get another church. He had none of the requisites for a new position. He was too old; his voice was impaired; he lacked vim. Most of the churches looking for a rector were languishing and wanted an energetic young man with business talent to build them up. Simple piety would not pay off mortgages. He got some work to do for a publisher of religious literature, but the pay was inconsiderable. He moved into a cottage and kept his family from starving as best he could.

During Mr. Butterfield's prosperity he kept a horse and buggy. One morning when his friends were gone and his larder empty he drove his rig into the city to sell it. He was turning a corner when an automobile coming in the opposite direction ran into his buggy, smashed it, but left the clergyman unhurt.

"You fool!" exclaimed the man driving the automobile. "Why did you turn to the left?"

"Because," gasped poor Butterfield, "I supposed you wanted room to swing round the corner."

A crowd collected. Mr. Butterfield wore a clerical garb, and all saw that he was an inoffensive clergyman. They began to hoot at the auto man to pay for the damage he had done.

"All right," he said. "I wish to do what is just and liberal, though I'm a lawyer, and it wouldn't cost me anything to defend a suit." Then, taking out his pocketbook, he drew a card from it and a pencil and prepared to make a memorandum.

"What's your name?" he asked.

"Butterfield."

"First name?"

"Marcus."

The man looked up at the clergyman and surveyed him critically

"Any other name?"

"Antonius."

"By thunder!" exclaimed the auto man.

"What's the matter?" asked the clergyman, surprised.

"You a son of Charles Stanton Butterfield?"

"Yes."

"Nephew of Anna Maria Stanton?"

"I believe I had an aunt of that name."

"Well, my friend, all I have to say is that this is a lucky smashup for you. I've had $200,000 for you for four years, left you by Anna Stanton. I've been looking for you all over the world. If you were not found within five years after the bequest it was to go to charity."

Mr. Butterfield, amid the cheers of the crowd, got into the automobile, was driven to a distant city and received his legacy.

Then what did he do? He astounded his former congregation by paying off the mortgage on the church.

"I do think," said Miss Tetling to Mrs. Abercrombie, "that man is a real Christian."

"No one will ever accuse you of that," was the unvarnished response.

The Legislature and Japanese Question.

The Legislature did the right thing Thursday in passing Assemblyman Grove L. Johnson's bill which forces the Japanese out of our public schools. This anti-Japanese legislation on the part of our law-makers in Sacramento has created consternation in official circles in Washington and President Roosevelt will undoubtedly swing that big stick over the devoted heads of Governer Gillett and the members of the Legislature, and this preliminary legislation against an undesirable and unchristianized race of aliens will probably go for naught.

Senator Perkins is quoted in a dispatch from Washington as saying that the position of Californians on the Japanese question was sound and that their antipathy to the alien race is reasonable, and that we have a right to legislate against them if we so desire.

Unfortunately the President does not agree with our senior Senator and he is interposing objections to any kind of anti-Japanese legislation on the grounds that it will interfere with a treaty between two countries that are now on friendly terms, and cause an estrangement that may lead to serious complications. Of course the President ought to be in a position to know whereof he speaks, and it might be well for the people of California not to take issue with him in this matter of adverse legislation to the Japs, but in this school matter we certainly have a right to draw a line between the infidel Jap and our boys and girls, the big stick to the contrary notwithstanding. There is such a thing as rubbing it in.

EAT SAUSAGES AND NEW BREAD.

Or any Other Favorite Food Without Fear of an Upset Stomach.

You can eat anything your stomach craves without fear of a case of indigestion or dyspepsia, or that your food will ferment or sour on your stomach, if you will occasionally take a little Diapepsin after eating.

Your meals will taste good, and anything you eat will be digested; nothing can ferment or turn into acid or poison or stomach gas, which causes belching, dizziness, a feeling of fullness after eating, nausea, indigestion (like a lump of lead in stomach), biliousness, heart burn, water brash, pain in the stomach and intestines or other symptoms.

Headaches from the stomach are absolutely unknown where this effective remedy is used. Diapepsin really does all the work of a healthy stomach. It digests your meals when your stomach can't. Each triangule will digest all the food you can eat and leave nothing to ferment or sour.

Get a large 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from your druggist and start taking today and by tomorrow you will actually brag about your healthy, strong stomach, for then you can eat anything and everything you want without the slightest discomfort or misery, and every porticle of impurity and gas that is in your stomach and intestines is going to be carried away without the use of laxatives or any other assistance.

Bad Symptoms.

The woman who has periodical headaches, backache, sees imaginary dark spots or specks floating or dancing before her eyes, has gnawing distress or heavy full feeling in stomach, faint spells, dragging-down feeling in lower abdominal or pelvic region, easily startled or excited, irregular or painful periods, with or without pelvic catarrh, is suffering from weaknesses and derangements that should have early attention. Not all of above symptoms are likely to be present in any case at one time.

Neglected or badly treated and such cases often run into maladies which demand the surgeon's knife if they do not result fatally.

No medicine extant has such a long and numerous record of cures in such cases as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. No medicine has such a strong professional indorsement of each of its several ingredients—worth more than any number of ordinary non-professional testimonials. The very best ingredients known to medical science for the cure of woman's peculiar ailments enter into its composition. No alcohol, harmful, or habit-forming drug is to be found in the list of its ingredients printed on each bottle-wrapper and attested under oath.

In any condition of the female system, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription can do only good—never harm. Its whole effect is to strengthen, invigorate and regulate the whole female system and especially the pelvic organs. When these are deranged in function or affected by disease, the stomach and other organs of digestion become sympathetically deranged, the nerves are weakened, and a long list of bad, unpleasant symptoms follow. Too much must not be expected of this "Favorite Prescription." It will not perform miracles; will not cure tumors—no medicine will. It will often prevent them, if taken in time, and thus the operating table and the surgeon's knife may be avoided.

Women suffering from diseases of long standing, are invited to consult Doctor Pierce by letter, free. All correspondence is held as strictly private and sacredly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser (1000 pages) is sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps for paper-covered, or 31 stamps for cloth-bound copy. Address as above.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. Eph. Weiss, the expert refractionist and optician of San Francisco, will be in Sonoma at the Union Hotel, February 2d. *

An aged man and wife were arrested for drunkenness on the streets of Santa Rosa, one day this week, and both sent to jail for ten days.

Attorney H. P. Mathewson has had the windows of his offices handsomely lettered by E. Marzo, the sign painter. Mr. Mathewson is building up a splendid practice here and is a busy man.

Henry Weber, Jr., celebrated his thirteenth birthday last Saturday at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Weber, where he entertained twenty-five of his boy and girl friends.

Practically all out-door work has been suspended in this valley, owing to the great storm, ever since the advent of the New Year. Still business goes along just the same and the old town do still move.

Hon. Duncan E. McKinlay has forwarded to this office a quantity of vegetable seed from the Department of Agriculture for free distribution. The variety embraces peas, cucumbers, beet, parsley, kohl rabi, radish and lettuce seed. Parties desiring any of these seeds can have them by calling at this office.

Wm. Durrant, who purchased the Robt. Clark ranch of 105 acres between Agua Caliente and Glen Ellen, last fall, has disposed of 50 acres of his holding to Robt. P. Hill of Eldridge. The purchase price was $5,000. That portion of the ranch facing on the county road was reserved by Mr. Durrant, and the fifty acres disposed of to Mr. Hill is the rear portion of the farm.

Patrick Malone, who was frightfully cut with an ax by John Riley on the Bigelow ranch, on Tuesday of last week, will recover. The injured man is still being cared for in the Leix sanitarium. He has relatives in Napa, but so far they have manifested little or no interest in him. His assailant, Riley, is in the county jail and must face a charge of assault to commit murder.

The weather, which has become a chestnut, this week has been a repetition of the week before, and it has just simply rained, and rained and rained. By the great hornspoon, we wonder if it will ever let up. As we go to press Friday afternoon it has apparently cleared up. We say apparently with caution, for has it not been doing the very same thing the past five weeks and fooling McAdie and all the lesser weather prophets ?

John R. Spellacy Dead

John R. Spellacy, who left here with his family a couple of months ago for Santa Rosa, died in that city Sunday. The deceased had been a sufferer for years from lingering consumption, which finally reduced him from affluence to penury and want. The deceased, in the days of health and prosperity, married the daughter of ex-Sheriff Matthew Nunan of San Francisco and was elected a State Senator from that city. He was a native of Illinois and 54 years of age. Mrs. Spellacy's relatives had the remains shipped to San Mateo and laid to rest in Holy Cross Cemetery.

THE ARMSTRONG GROVE MEASURE.

It is Given a Black Eye by the "Call," Which Charges Graft.

The San Francisco Call asserts that an ugly scandal is threatened in the State Legislature when the bill for the purchase of the Armstrong grove of big trees in this county comes up for final consideration. While the measure has been favored by Senator Price and most of the newspapers of the county and many of our most prominent people on sentimental grounds, our metropolitan contemporary charges that its promoters stand to clear $85,000 on the deal. It is explained that the grove can be purchased for $40,000. The State has been asked to pay $125,000. The property is assessed for $12,500.

Between the present owners and the State stands H. M. LeBaron, President of the Dairyman's Bank of Valley Ford, in Northern Marin county. LeBaron has an option on the property for $40 000 and demands $125,000, and has interested many civic bodies in his scheme, although it was probably unknown to the friends of the measure that the astute banker stood to make a cool $85,000 profit at the expense of the State. LeBaron assumes an air of indifference and says that he is not eager to sell even at that price.

The grove belongs to Walter Armstrong and Mrs. Elizabeth Armstrong, his sister, and the Call further charges it was from them LeBaron secured his option. He paid $400 for it, and has made it doubly certain by placing a deed to the property in escrow.

If these assertions of the Call be true the measure will have a hard row to hoe when it snags up against he " reformers " in the Legislature, who wont do a thing to a bill whose sentiment is " Oh, woodman, spare that tree."

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL NOTES.

Mrs. Pauline McMullin was the guest of her sister Mrs. Theo Nauman of the metropolis the fore part of the week.

Miss Bessie Knight, who has been visiting relatives in the State of Washington all winter, is now on her way home.

The Woman's Club cleared $12 last Saturday by taking Hotz's dry goods store for the day and conducting it for the profits.

The Sonoma High School girls will try conclusions with the High School girls of Napa in a basket ball game here this afternoon.

Dr. Wm. Dawson, Superintendent of the California Home at Eldridge, was in Sacrament several days this week looking after legislation favorable to the institution.

Mrs. Nancy E. Clark, after an absence of six years in Azusa, Los Angeles county, has returned to Sonoma for an indefinite visit with her daughter, Mrs. Henry Bates.

Ralph E. Perkins, who has been here visiting relatives the past four weeks, has traveled extensively during his several years' absence. He has been in Mexico, Central and South America and has engaged in various business enterprises. He returned to his old Sonoma home just in time to realize that it is raining some here this winter.

Death of Little Richard Watt.

Richard, the six-month's old son of Mr. and Mrs. Dick Watt of Schellville, passed away last Saturday after an illness of several weeks. The funeral took place Monday, and the remains were followed to Mountain cemetery by a large concourse of relatives and friends.

RAILWAY EXTENSION TALK IS REVIVED.

Railway Officials Visit is Said to be Preliminary to an Eastern Connection.

That the work of closing the 105-mile gap between Sherwood, the present terminus of the Northwestern Pacific railroad, and Pepperwood in Humboldt county, will commence early next spring is now conceded in railway circles.

The completion of this gap will give this section of the State a transcontinental line of railway to develop its resources and will in time make it a formiable rival of Southern California in wealth and population.

The Chronicle of Tuesday, in commenting upon the tour of inspection made over the lines of the Northwestern Pacific this week by leading officials of the road, says :

"The Southern Pacific and Santa Fe jointly own the Northwestern Pacific and one company has five out of nine directors each alternate year. This year the Southern Pacific has five directors. A survey of the extension of the line northward from Willits was made before the fire, but the data and the maps were destroyed. A second survey was then made and work actually begun from both ends of the line. In the latter part of 1907 the work was suddenly suspended, and it was reported that the line would not be constructed until a more favorable state of financial affairs existed. There have been various rumors regarding the resumption of work, but these have been denied and the reason given that the funds were not available.

It has also been reported that Harriman was delaying the work until he could get absolute control of the Northwestern Pacific. It was suggested in this connection that Harriman found no difficulty in obtaining funds for any sort of railroad that promised traffic, while this line would tap one of the richest districts in the country.

The road is already built a considerable distance north from Eureka, and there is another short stretch constructed between Smith's River and Crescent City, near the Oregon line. The completion of these gaps would complete the line with Harriman's Coos bay and Drain branches, and might eventually give the Santa Fe a half-interest in a trunk line between San Francisco and Portland via the Northwestern Pacific that would become a competitor of the existing Shasta route.

For this reason, it is said, Harriman has been waiting to get control of the Northwestern Pacific before permitting further gaps to be closed. It has been frequently announced, however, that work on the new portion of the road would begin this spring and the trip over the Northwestern Pacific of President Payson and General Manager Palmer, the fore part of the week, was made with this object in view.

COUNTY NEWS ITEMS.

Excerpts From Our Local Exchanges of Happenings the Past Week.

Inez Buzzetti has been adjudged insane and committed to the Napa State Hospital by Judge Seawell.

The new Sonoma County Court House will be completed on July 20th and turned over to the Board of Supervisors by the contractors.

The will of the late Madam Preston was filed for probate in the Superior Court last Tuesday. The decedent bequeaths all her property to the church at Preston in trust. She provides that if any of her relatives lay claim to the estate they are to be given $1 each.

No clew has as yet been obtained to the cracksmen who dynamited the Postoffice and Meacham's store at Freestone on Thursday night of last week. The safe-crackers got away with $200 in cash and four promissory notes, one for $1,000 and the others for $175, $100 and $40 respectively.

George Comanche, an Indian, was convicted of murder in the second degree in the Superior Court of this county Saturday night. Comanche slew a fellow aborigine, and the jury, no doubt having in mind the old saying that " dead injuns are the only good ones," recommended him to the mercy of the court.

Judge Seawell's decision in the suit of Farmer vs Behmer has been upheld by the Appellate Court. The suit was brought by Miss Lou Farmer against Dan Behmer to secure a permanent injunction restraining him from renting certain property in Santa Rosa for immoral purposes. Other similar suits will be brought against the owners of houses in the red light district of that gay town.

DOES NO HARM, BUT MUCH GOOD.

Recipe Easily Prepared at Small Cost, and Many Swear By It.

Mix the following by shaking well in a bottle, and take in teaspoonful doses after meals and at bedtime :

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one half ounce ; Compound Kargon, one ounce ; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. A local druggist is the authority that these simple, harmless ingredients can be obtained at nominal cost from our home druggists.

The mixture is said to cleanse and strengthen the clogged and inactive kidneys, overcoming backache, bladder weakness and urinary trouble of all kinds if taken before the stage of Bright's disease.

Those who have tried this say it positively overcomes pain in the back, clears the urine of sediment and regulates urination, especially at night, curing even the worst forms of bladder weakness.

Every man or woman who feels that the kidneys are not strong or acting in a healthy manner should mix this prescription at home and give it a trial, as it is said to do wonders for many persons.

Impossible to be Well

It is impossible to be well, simply impossible, if the bowels are constipated. You must pay attention to the laws of nature, or suffer the consequences. Undigested material, waste products, poisonous substances, must be removed from the body at least once each day, or there will be trouble. DIFFERENT STYLES.

How Meredith and Browning Might Describe the Same Incident.

If Browning and George Meredith were describing the same act they might both be obscure, but their obscurities would be entirely different. Suppose, for instance, they were describing even so prosaic and material an act as a man being knocked downstairs by another man to whom he had given the lie. Meredith's description would refer to something which an ordinary observer would not see or at least could not describe. It might be a sudden sense of anarchy in the brain of the assaulter or a stupefaction and stunned serenity in that of the object of the assault.

He might write: "Wainwood's 'men vary in veracity' brought the baronet's arm up. He felt the doors of his brain burst and Wainwood a swift rushing of himself through air, accompanied with a clarity as of the annihilated."

Meredith, in other words, would speak queerly because he was describing queer mental experiences. But Browning might simply be describing the material incident of the man being knocked downstairs, and his description would run:

What then? "You lie" and doormat below stairs
Takes bump from back.

This is not subtlety, but merely a kind of insane swiftness.—Gilbert K. Chesterton.

BEARDED LADIES.

A Parisian Showman Says They Are Quite Numerous.

An Englishwoman who confesses to a mild mania for attending the street fairs common in and around Paris says that she is always impressed by the extraordinary number of bearded ladies among the attractions.

"I was inclined to think that they were fakes," she says in the London Gentlewoman, "but when I discovered that they were quite genuine my surprise at this wonderful supply of phenomena grew stronger. And when a few days ago I saw at the fair in the Avenue d'Orleans a lady exhibited with a long flowing beard I could no longer withhold my curiosity.

"I applied for information to a gentleman well known in the showman world and who acts as a kind of agent to the people owning shows, supplying them with the necessary goods, human and otherwise. This gentleman appeared surprised at my question.

"'Bearded ladies!' he exclaimed. 'I can find as many as I like. You have no idea how many women, if they liked, could rival men as regards whiskers and mustaches. But they are not anxious to enter into that kind of competition.'"

Winged Burglars.

Buchner in his "Psychic Life of Animals" speaks of thievish bees which, in order to save themselves the trouble of working, attack well stocked hives in masses, kill the sentinels and the inhabitants, rob the hives and carry off the provisions. After repeated enterprises of this description they acquire a taste for robbery and violence. They recruit whole companies, which get more and more numerous, and finally they form regular colonies of brigand bees. But it is a still more curious fact that these brigand bees can be produced artificially by giving working bees a mixture of honey and brandy to drink. The bees soon acquire a taste for this beverage, which has the same disastrous effect upon them as upon men. They become ill disposed and irritable and lose all desire for work, and finally, when they begin to feel hungry, they attack and plunder the well supplied hives.

One Reason.

There may be two reasons for a thing, both equally true, and it may be the height of folly to attribute the effect to both. A gentleman to whom art was a strange thing asked a friend to whom the ways of its votaries were more familiar:

"Why does Conneray stand off and half shut his eyes when he looks at the pictures he is painting? I was in his studio the other day, and he made me do it too."

"That's simply explained," replied the other. "Did you ever try to look at them near to, with your eyes wide open? Well, don't. You can't stand it."—Youth's Companion.

Didn't Wait For It.

A couple of Scotch ministers were taking dinner together one summer day in a little manse in the highlands. It was the Sabbath day, the weather was beautiful, and the bubbling streams were full of trout and the woods full of summer birds. One turned to the other and said:

"Mon, don't ye often feel tempted on these beautiful Sundays to go out fishing?"

"Na, na," said the other. "I never feel tempted. I juist gang."

Plenty of Him.

"What sort of man is Jinks?"

"The impression you get of Jinks depends on the circumstances under which you meet him. If you're there to collect money you won't like him. But if you're there to pay money he seems a lovely character."

His Way Out of It.

"He don't give nuthin' to the church now?"

"No. Somebody told him the Bible says salvation is 'free,' an' he says fur he it from him to dispute the Scriptures!"—Atlanta Constitution.

Liberty exists in proportion to wholesome restraint.—Webster.

Knew His Limitations.

"I proph'sied he'd make a living," Mr. Hobart said, speaking of a New York painter who spent a summer at his farm, "because he knew what he could do, little as 'twas, and didn't try to fly too high.

"Yes," Mr. Hobart continued, with a thoughtful smile, "you couldn't get him to attempt any foolish flights. All that summer he set out in the hen yard, painting hens, or else out back o' the barn, painting pigs. And when I said to him, 'Look a-here, when Abe Fowler comes to paint the house I'll get him to show you how and let you take a hack at the side end, where 'twon't show so much and allow it on your board,' he just shook his head and smiled that kind o' gentle, sorrowful smile o' his, and says he: 'I couldn't think of it, Mr. Hobart. I should just ruin the looks o' the house. I'll keep to the pigs and the hens, for I know my limitations.'

"Well, 'twas a real relief to me, for I suppose likely he would have botched the job consid'able. And I said to him then real hearty, 'Young man, you'll earn your living yet, for you ain't all et up with pride and ambition,' and my words have come true, by what I hear."—Youth's Companion.

The Retort Final.

The garrulous old lady in the stern of the boat had pestered the guide with her comments and questions ever since they had started. Her meek little husband, who was bunched toadlike in the bow, fished in silence. The old lady seemingly exhausted every possible point in fish and animal life, woodcraft and personal history when she suddenly espied one of those curious paths of oily, unbroken water frequently seen on small lakes which are ruffled by a light breeze.

"Oh, guide, guide," she exclaimed, "what makes that funny streak in the water? No, there—right over there!"

The guide was busy rebaiting the old gentleman's hook and merely mumbled, "U-m-mm."

"Guide," repeated the old lady in tones that were not to be denied, "look right over there where I'm pointing and tell me what makes that funny streak in the water."

The guide looked up from his baiting, with a sigh.

"That? Oh, that's where the road went across the ice last winter."—Everybody's Magazine.

Emerson's Memory.

Emerson was a notable sufferer from the vagaries of memory. His biographer relates that he met him one day in Boston apparently at a loss for something and asked him where he was going. "To dine," said Emerson, "with a very old and dear friend. I know where she lives, but I hope she won't ask me her name." And then he proceeded to describe her as "the mother of the wife of the young man—the tall man—who speaks so well," and so on, until his interlocutor guessed to whom he was referring. Even the names of common objects often failed him completely. On one occasion when he wanted an umbrella he said: "I can't tell its name, but I can tell its history. Strangers take it away." This failing of Emerson led to a pathetic scene when he attended Longfellow's funeral and remarked as he gazed at the coffin, "He was a sweet and beautiful soul, but I have entirely forgotten his name."

Nero's Golden House.

The "golden house" of Nero seems from all accounts to have been the most stupendous dwelling place ever built for a mortal man. Even if we regard the ancient descriptions as somewhat exaggerated it remains one of the largest royal houses ever built, and the internal decorations seem to have been incomparably magnificent. It was surrounded by parks, woods and pools of great size, which appear to have been entirely within the walls. The colonnades of the house itself extended a mile in length and crossed one of the main thoroughfares of the city. The cities of the east were ransacked for masterpieces of Greek art for the interior. The walls shone with gold and pearls, and the roof rested on marble columns of enormous size and beauty.—New York American.

Not Bull Run.

The story was told of an American who happened to be crossing the ocean some years ago on the Fourth of July, which national holiday was celebrated with great enthusiasm by the Americans on board.

"I say," asked one of the Englishmen, "what is this the anniversary of anyhow? Isn't it to celebrate the battle of Bull Run or something of that kind?"

"No," promptly spoke up an American, "not Bull Run—John Bull Run."

Takes Him Down.

"Every man has his price," quoted the wise guy.

"Well, I've noticed that a woman can generally make him feel pretty cheap," added the simple mug.—Philadelphia Record.

A Wonderful Hand.

Master—I'm sorry to hear, Pat, that your wife is dead. Patrick—Faith an' 'tis a sad day for us all, sir! The hand that rocked the cradle has kicked the bucket.

Fear and Danger.

Nervous Old Lady (to deck hand on steamboat)—Is there any fear of danger? Deck Hand (carelessly)—Plenty of fear, ma'am, but not a bit of danger.

The United States submarine tenders fly a flag with a black fish on a white background surrounded by a red border.

A Reasonable Excuse.

"Bridget," said Mrs. Subbubs sternly, "breakfast is half an hour late again."

"Yis, mim," returned Bridget meekly.

"What excuse have you to offer? You know I told you that Mr. Subbubs must catch that early train, and punctuality at breakfast is absolutely necessary," said the lady.

"Sure an' Oi oversblep' mesilf," said Bridget.

"That is no excuse," said the mistress. "I gave you an alarm clock only yesterday."

"Oi know that, mim."

"Did you wind it up?"

"Oi did."

"And didn't it go off?"

"Sure an' it did that. It made a tarrible n'ise."

"Then why didn't you get up?"

"Sure, mim," responded Bridget tearfully, "it was that t'ing that's made all the throuble. Oi niver shlep' a wink all night waitin' for it to go off, an' whin it did Oi was that toired Oi couldn't move."—Harper's Weekly.

To Cure Wrinkles.

"Look at a paralytic if you think wrinkles incurable," said a beauty doctor. "On the side he is paralyzed all his wrinkles disappear. Though he be sixty or seventy, his profile on that side is the profile of a youth. So the paralytic shows us how to cure our wrinkles—namely, by keeping our facial muscles still. If we keep our faces in perfect repose, never laughing when the comedian sings his best song, never weeping when wife or sweetheart dies, we will have no wrinkles whatever. The skin wouldn't wrinkle if it were not exposed. The skin of the body is much disturbed by action of the muscles underneath—as at the knee, for instance—yet this unexposed skin never wrinkles. Not being exposed to the bad influence of sun and wind, it has not lost the oil and the elasticity of childhood And that's where I come in with my creams and unguents and massages."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Taming Patti.

Patti was to sing on a certain date at Bucharest, but at the last moment she declined to leave Vienna. It was too cold; snow everywhere; she would not risk catching her death of cold. M. Schurmann, the impresario, was in despair until a brilliant inspiration came to him. Quickly he telegraphed to the advance agent in the Roumanian capital: "At whatever cost Patti must receive an ovation at Bucharest station from the Italian aristocracy Send me by return the following wire: 'The members of the Italian and Roumanian nobility are preparing to give Mme. Patti a magnificent reception. The ministry will be represented. Processions, torches and bands. Telegraph the hour of arrival.'" The advance agent carried out this instruction, and when the telegram dictated to him over the wires arrived in Vienna it was handed to Patti, with the desired effect. "How charming!" she murmured. "What time do we start?"

His Wonderful Invention.

Australia, as is well known, is infested with rabbits, a most destructive and multitudinous pest. Not long ago a man invented the following plan:

You go out into the field from which the rabbits are to be removed. You saw down a tree, and on the slant of the stump you paint a black spot. Then you keep very quiet, so that the rabbits will come back from their burrows and feed as usual. When a large enough number has collected you clap your hands sharply. The effect will be electric. The rabbits will jump in haste for their burrows. At least one is sure to mistake the black spot for his hole and make for it. Invariably he will dash his brains out. This process, repeated often enough, is warranted to exterminate the rabbit forever.

The reports do not say whether there are any rabbits left in Australia.

Twin Place.

One day an old gentleman who found the Java village at the World's fair very absorbing at length confided in a young man standing near. "It's powerful nice to watch," he said, "but I may say I should be better on't if I was a trifle better posted. My jography's a leetle rusty, and it's truth and fact that I don't jestly know where Java is. Now, where is it?"

"Oh," said the young man, with the assured quiet of one who knows, "just a little way from Mocha!"—Argonaut.

Making It Easier.

Little Jean's dolly had met with an accident, and her mother had procured a new head for it. The removal of the old head proved to be a rather difficult task, which Jean watched with great interest.

"I'm afraid, Jean, I can't get this old head off," said the mother.

Jean's face glowed with the light of an inspiration as she said:

"Never mind, mamma; just take the body off."

A Teaser.

"There is one subject on which it is difficult to keep up interest?"

"What particular subject is that on which it is difficult to keep up interest?"

"The mortgage of my house."

To the Point.

Elderly Aunt—I suppose you wondered, dear little Hans, why I left you so abruptly in the lane. I saw a man, and, oh, how I ran! Hans—Did you get him?—Fliegende Blatter.

A man that is young in years may be old in hours if he has lost no time. —Bacon.
